

Flash Flood Watch Through Saturday Evening

Important Forecast Changes

- Heavy Rain and minor flooding still likely this evening through Saturday evening.
- Higher totals of 2 to 5 inches, with isolated 8 inch totals are possible through Saturday PM.
- Flash Flood Watch expanded to include the Hill Country and Austin Metro.

Key Messages

- ✓ Numerous storms expected this evening through Saturday.
- ✓ Some storms could produce heavy rain with localized flash flooding.
- ✓ Rainfall totals of 2 to 5 inches with isolated amounts up to 8 inches are possible through Saturday evening.
- ✓ A Marginal Risk (level 1 of 5) for severe weather to the south of highway 90 this evening, and Marginal Risk for severe weather for all areas tomorrow.
- ✓ Isolated damaging winds and large hail are the primary hazards. Very low risk of a tornado.

Flash Flood Watch

Until 7 pm Saturday: 2 to 5 inches with Isolated totals to 8 inches possible

Weather Forecast Office
Austin/San Antonio, TX
Issued Apr 30, 2021 3:13 PM CDT

Hazard Summary

LOCATION TIMING

- Through this evening
- Numerous showers and thunderstorms with heavy rain across a good chunk of the area. Isolated strong storms south of Highway 90 are possible with hail and strong wind gusts.
- Saturday
- Widespread showers and thunderstorms with heavy rain that could result in flash flooding. Isolated strong to severe storms possible by the evening.

RAINFALL FLOODING

- Through Saturday evening
- 2 to 5 inches of rainfall, with isolated pockets of 8 inches are possible within the Flash Flood Watch area.
- Localized to minor flash flooding is possible should heavier bands develop.
- Low potential for river flooding.

HAIL

- Isolated severe storms could produce hail up to one inch this evening and on Saturday afternoon and evening.

DAMAGING
WIND

- Isolated wind gusts to 60 mph are possible tonight and Saturday.

TORNADOES

- VERY LOW chance on Saturday afternoon and evening of an isolated tornado.

LIGHTNING

- Frequent cloud to ground lightning strikes possible
- “Bolts from the blue” can strike 10-15 miles away from where it is actually raining